Issuing a renewal prior to the expiration date of an existing ROP

It is acceptable to issue a renewal prior to the expiration date of an existing ROP. However, it should be made clear in the renewal issuance letter that the existing ROP is voided upon issuance of the renewal. If the existing ROP includes a Phase II Acid Rain permit(s) and/or CSAPR requirements, the letter should also explain that the permit(s)/requirements in the appropriate Appendix(ices) is/are also voided because the(se) permit(s)/requirements is/are being renewed at the same time. For a Source-Wide PTI that was established in the existing ROP, that PTI is reissued (not renewed) and given a new PTI number when the ROP is renewed.

Reopening pursuant to Rule 217(2)

The steps for an ROP reopening under Rule 217(2) are basically the same as for an initial/renewal issuance, but different templates and/or file naming conventions are required at certain stages. See “Public Participation Procedures for Renewable Operating Permits - Reopenings” (ROP Manual 5.B).

Appendix B - Handling Comments Received During Public Comment Period

No comments: In cases where no comments are received during the public comment period, this should be noted in the Staff Report addendum.

Comments about issues that are not pertinent to the permit: If comments are received that are related to zoning, noise, etc., are outside the ROP regulatory authority, or are NIMBY-type comments that cannot/should not be addressed in the permit, the decision-maker for the permit is informed that these comments have been received. A note is made in the file (and may be written directly on the letter itself if the comment is received in writing) to indicate that the comment has been determined not to be relevant to the permit and that the decision-maker has been informed.

Comments on relevant but “non-substantive” issues: Comments received about typographical errors, sentence structure or clarity, etc., are usually resolved by making the correction or wording adjustment in the permit, then calling the commenter to let them know that the change has been made. (This is routinely done for these kinds of comments from EPA.) A note is made in the permit file to document that the phone conversation took place. If warranted, the change may also be noted in the Staff Report addendum. After the permit is issued, a copy of the Staff Report is sent to the commenter(s) if the address is known.

Calls or letters about relevant but minor technical details and oversights: The handling of these comments is not especially formal, but this category of comments requires judgment based on the circumstances. If the comment is received in a letter from a legislator, this may best be addressed by a letter of response. If the comment is received from a citizen who has been regularly in contact to discuss the permit issues with staff and the individual is satisfied by a call, the comment and the follow-up are noted in the file. If warranted, such comments should be documented in the Staff Report addendum. A copy of the Staff Report should be sent to the commenter(s) if the address is known.

When comments are received, a summary and response is documented in the Staff Report addendum. Make sure all comments are sufficiently addressed. In addition, thorough detail should be added in the technical review notes. The comments are consolidated to the maximum extent possible and as concisely as possible. A mailing should be sent to all commenters when the permit is sent to EPA for 45-day review and when issued. This mailing includes the Staff Report with a cover letter to “Interested Parties” from the decision-maker with information regarding the permit status and explaining that the permit has been approved with appropriate changes based on comments received.
